It seems as though all of your public comment sessions, which include hearing a staff presentation, are held in the day time when most people are at work. It seems quite unreasonable to expect the public to take time off of work to participate in your process. I ask that you schedule staff presentations and public input opportunities when most residents and taxpayers are not at work, as do governments across the Cape. This would be the approach if one were interested in being accessible to working people. It would also be excellent if after you make your processes more accessible to working people for comment opportunity that you also discuss public comment. This is in light of the fact that the Commission never convened to discuss public comment on the Regional Housing Strategy (and it seems never met to adopt it as a Commission document.) Thank you.
